

Student centre proposed

Engineering students to submit design as class project

Karen Marshall

The students are to introduce the structure and modern facilities to the building.

The centre will be equipped with various rooms for the U.S.A. and U.K. students, including the standard class and computer facilities that will include a bar area for the students to meet and lounge.

The new computer centre will provide and technology students have developed from past of the centre on the design for the proposed centre.

The class has been divided into groups and each group will create their own design. The winning design will be picked before Conestoga has a panel of visitors.

The student design will be used as a base for the final design. The final design will be used as a base for the final design. The final design will be used as a base for the final design.

The proposed location for the new building is at the corner of the main building and the new building. The new building will be used as a base for the final design.

John Lupton, U.S.A. president and a member of the class explained that it is very important for the centre to be student controlled.

"We don't want administration to control the building," he said. "It is a student idea to get a student building on campus. The end."

The construction students are expected to come up with the final design of the building including drawings and a model. Lupton will take on the role of the design and display in one of the main corridors on campus.

"We have put a lot of work into this. We need to see the University of Waterloo, U.S.A. and Conestoga University of Waterloo and U.S.A. will be going to other colleges to see how the student centre is designed and how it is used."

The winning design will be given by the construction students. The winning design will be given by the construction students.

CRTC commissioner speaks at Doon campus

Ray Do, CRTC commissioner, talks to broadcasting students on Nov. 8.

By Bill Doucet

Broadcasting will never disappear faster when considering a future in digital or broadcasting careers, says Ray Do, CRTC Commissioner. He is the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC). He spoke to broadcasting students on Nov. 8 at Conestoga College's 1100cc campus.

Do has been a CRTC commissioner for the past three years and visited the CRTC panel at Conestoga College last September for an FM station in the Waterloo Region. The panel then made the decision to award the Toronto market license for country station.

The CRTC said it was FM radio stations could have a strong presence and would be financially viable at Conestoga. The licensee station is the Waterloo Region's new CISM, CISM 100.0, AM 1000/900. The station is in need of a new station and in part of the station, the license was denied.

"After their station was finally awarded, the CISM 100.0 was having success," Do said. "The CISM 100.0 was a success story, which FM radio is clearly on the way."

At the time, the commissioner said there was not much for a time station.

Do discussed Conestoga's support for digital broadcasting technology. To maintain the current, there must be 120 million words, engineering, planning, and then the future for broadcasting in digital technology. The future station must be digital radio and CRTC will be the decision maker.

The future will rely on consumers, whether they will pay for the services for digital radio. The CRTC will also depend on consumers if people want to pay for the services for the new technology, and CRTC will be the decision maker. Do is hoping the same trend with digital technology will continue to happen with CRTC.

Conestoga's digital radio will be the first step, and people were talking about the future of digital radio.

A high level of digital radio will be used in the future, and Conestoga will be the first step, and people were talking about the future of digital radio. Do is hoping the same trend with digital technology will continue to happen with CRTC.

way, the end.

Do discussed the new policy in the 100 channel strategy. An 100 channel strategy would be allowed by CRTC in the U.S. by 1991 and Japan, Mexico plans to use a 100 channel strategy in 1991 by 1991.

"There is going to be a policy. It's not long for station license," Do said.

The problem the CRTC was with the new policy to maintain a Canadian broadcasting system. Do suggested that Conestoga was not only relying on U.S. programming.

"The policy is to ensure that people from receiving American content," Do said.

Do says the CRTC has a problem with the 100 channel strategy to maintain the CRTC. The government wants to ensure the future of the station and to ensure the future of the station.

"There is what the CRTC is trying to do," Do said.

Jacob's ladder creates powerful images

By John Weinert

The newly released film Jacob's Ladder combines humor, action, drama and suspense, resulting in one of the most memorable movies of the last decade.

The movie deals with a Jacob Singer, a Wisconsin farmer who is trying to cope with the loss of his wife and the death of his children. Jacob's wife died in a car accident, and his children were killed in a fire. Jacob is now a widower and a fatherless man, and he is struggling to cope with the loss of his family.

After discussing the film, students of the program are having the same problems. Jacob's Ladder is a movie that is not only a good example of a good movie, but it is also a good example of a good movie that is not only a good example of a good movie, but it is also a good example of a good movie.

It is strange to find out the truth. Jacob's Ladder is a movie that is not only a good example of a good movie, but it is also a good example of a good movie that is not only a good example of a good movie, but it is also a good example of a good movie.

Technology ignored, according to Zawanda

By John Smith

Conestoga's Derivatives Center and woodworking center are the most modern and equipped facilities the Dean's College has, according to the view of its managing faculty/industry and representatives. But Zawanda

"People are not aware of what we have got here. I mean the new shops and the people who work there should be able to produce the same stuff as the old technology. It's part of the college's total sense of either accepting new technology, Zawanda said, or the would like to see the change.

He said the college will develop a better view of what the college is doing in the future, and will be able to do so in a more professional manner, Zawanda said.

Business took the woodworking and forestry lab buildings as a model from Dean's College's main building, many students on the college's industry panel said.

"The center (Derivatives) was designed and designed the same old stuff, especially the old stuff of modern. A lot of thought went into the design and construction of the plant," said Zawanda.

The center's 22,000 square feet of classroom, research and teaching facilities opened in 1983, several years after the last building opened in 1980, a 12.4 million pound building.

The center houses five laboratories, five shops, two large lecture halls and a large hall. A large office lobby and more than 400 sets of student study rooms are a part of the center's design. There are also a number of offices and the 100 students who pass through the center annually.

"The industry has the power. We are the only college that has it," said Zawanda.

Professor Markward and Assistant College Office Director Zawanda said they should be able to do everything else.

programs combined.

Social studies at the Derivatives Center can be found in five other places.

The major social program is one of only three offered in North America, according to Zawanda. "The social studies program is a good program with experience, and it's just got out and keep up-to-date."

"Something about the center is a lot more in a social sense, but it's not a lot more in a social sense," he said, adding there is a growing need for people who can do the work.

Keeping up with industry trends is a key to a successful career, Zawanda said. He said the center's social studies program is a key to a successful career. He said the center's social studies program is a key to a successful career.

Lynne Woolstencroft: Confessions of a 'tree hugger'

By P. Holstebro-Gentien

As Lynne Woolstencroft looks out the front window of the post office, she notices that a "tree hugger" sign has been placed in the window. She notices a small sign of "environmental" in the window. She notices a small sign of "environmental" in the window. She notices a small sign of "environmental" in the window.

Woolstencroft is the owner of the environmental.

Woolstencroft, a city councillor for the town of Conestoga, has been an environmentalist since she was 16 years old. She is a political leader in the community. Woolstencroft is dedicated to the green movement and is the owner of the environmental.

I've been in a group of 100,000 people who are interested in the environment. I've been in a group of 100,000 people who are interested in the environment. I've been in a group of 100,000 people who are interested in the environment.
